BULLETIN OF THE FIP THEMATIC COMMISSION

N.2 - JULY 1994

FOREWORD

When I prepared the first issue of TC News, I asked the cooperation of each delegate. To be sincere, I am very pleased with the very positive comments from some of you, but at the same time I cannot hide my disappointment for the lack of support as of today. Even those who promised some cooperation have not given it yet, so that after some months of wait we have decided to go into press with the material received. After the first issue, which was prepared by myself because of time problems, Bernard Jimenez, according to the distribution of tasks within the Bureau, is taking charge of the publication.

I am sure that in many cases the lack of timely answers has been caused by the workload that many of you have ; from my side I have been through a very tough period and I apologise for not attending the meetings in Bangkok due to a problem in the family. From a personal point of view I made the only decision possible, since what happened in the next days showed that my presence at home was really compulsory. Some communications problems made the situation more difficult, since Vice President Dahlvig received the material I prepared for the meetings the day after these took place.

I regret also that some letters I sent out to members of the Bureau and delegates have not been answered yet. For instance, a newly founded national thematic association asked for a formal message. I am holding the answer, since I need the confirmation from the national delegate that the same association is a member of the national Federation. The delegates to the FIP philatelic commissions have a clear mission, which reflects the general Statutes of the Federation : they are the only channel between the Commission and their national philatelic environment. For the same reason I am not answering the letters I receive, as President of Commission, from exhibitors who are making comments about the awards received or from other philatelist who draw my attention on national matters.

I am looking forward to your cooperation.

MEETING OF THE F.I.P. THEMATIC COMMISSION BANGKOK, 8TH OCTOBER 1993

Gunnar Dahlvig, Vice-President of The Commission, excuses Giancarlo Morolli, absent for personal reasons, and welcomes the delegates.

1 - ROLL CALL OF DELEGATES

20 Federations have been represented.

2 - APPROVAL OF THE MINUTES OF THE MEETING IN GENOVA

Gunnar Dahlvig comments these minutes which are approved by all the delegates.

3 - REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

Gunnar Dahlvig reads the report prepared by Giancarlo Morolli for the FIP Congress in Bangkok (see TC News n°1 - October 1993).

4 - REPORT ABOUT THE ACTIVITIES LAUNCHED IN GENOVA

Gunnar Dahlvig presents his conclusions about new trends in philately. 23 countries had answered to his questionnaire (see this report below).

Bernard Jimenez asks the delegates to send their contribution to the bulletin. TC News n°2 will be issued in January 1994. So news and reports must be sent to Giancarlo Morolli by 15th December 1993. Additions and changes to the "thematic organisation in the World" must be sent to Dr Manfred Bergman by 30th November 1993.

5 - MISCELLANEOUS

Revenues and fiscals : Many collectors ask questions about these items. According to the SREV there is no doubt : the items authorized are those having the purpose of to transmitting mail or others postal communications. That means that revenues which are not used as postage are not to be used. This is confirmed by the "Genova 92" jury remarks.

In conclusion we can say that the revenues we can see in the exhibition are to be exhibited in the revenue class and no other.

Norway ⁹⁴ : Gunnar Dahlvig and the Norwegian delegate, Ingolf Kapelrud, inform the delegates that there will be a limited FIP exhibition in Oslo from 11th to 20th April ¹⁹⁹⁷ ~~1994~~ with only three classes : postal history, aerophilately and thematic.

THE FIP CONGRESS IN BANGKOK

Among the many decisions taken :

Modification of SREV and GREV

Statutes state that no regulations can be changed until 1996 ; therefore the motion of our Commission was not discussed.

Admission of new Members :

- Association des Collectionneurs Albanais (Albania)
- Union of Philatelists of Armenia
- Union of Czech Philatelists
- Slovak Philatelic Federation
- Slovenian Philatelic Association
- Association of Philatelists of Ukraine

Post Congress :

FIP Vice President F. Burton Sellers has presented proposed principles for developing guidelines for "Special studies", i.e. exhibits accepted by organizers which the Jury does not consider fitting precisely in any of the FIP classes. Since our class could be impacted by this proposal, delegates should send in to the President their comments on the text published in FIP Flash 47 (3.94) at page 7

The first thematic Gold medals in the history of Indian Philately

R. Binani reports that INPEX-93, National exhibition held in Calcutta at the end of December 93, was a great success for thematic philately : out of 296 exhibits 78 were in the thematic class. 12 exhibits reached the qualification for international shows and 2 of them (Bagri and Binani) were awarded a gold medal, for the first time in the history of Indian philately. The Thematics Chapter of Philatelic Congress of India arranged a seminar which was well attended.

Giancarlo Morolli's display at the Royal Philatelic Society

A 108-pages display was presented by Giancarlo Morolli on 12 May, based on the material of his four collections. The first part aimed at presenting the sources of thematic information, whereas the second analysed the utilisation of such information through several examples of development. The presentation was followed with much attention and was followed by a very intensive Q&A session, on subjects like the regulations, the place of revenue stamps, the philatelic culture of thematic collectors.

The British THematic Association is publishing the English translation of Pim van den Bold's Dutch Book HANDBOOK OF

THEMATIC PHILATELY in the early summer. Anyone interested should write to the British Thematic Association C/O Francesca Rapkin for further details (Eaglewood- Oxhey Lane- Hatch End - Middx HA5 4AL - Great Britain)/

Bureau Meeting in Paris

On June 4 and 5 the members of the Bureau met in Paris for a full session which covered all the main aspects of the activity plan of the Commission. The meeting was hosted by the French Federation, which is to be thanked for the friendly support. M. Collage and Dr. Siem, delegates of Belgium and the Netherlands, were also invited. A summary of the discussion is presented in the Report to the FIP Congress, published in this issue.

Welcome to :

Jul Darajati (Albania)

Marc Collage (Belgium)

Prof. Alexander Ilyushin (Russia)

Now the Commission has 55 delegates !

1- NEW DELEGATES

As a result of the admission of new Federations in FIP the Commission consists now of 56 delegates. Federation Presidents are invited to assess the interest of their delegates into the activities of the Commission and to appoint a new delegate case he/she is not active. Delegates are not supposed to act just as mail boxes : they are requested to play a positive role and to act as a liaison between the Commission and the relevant Federation member.

Some delegates from new Federations have shown interest in receiving basic philatelic literature. Since individual activities have several constraints and mass sendings are made quite difficult by the cost of transportation, the Commission suggests that the subject be discussed in the next FIP-ASCAT-UPU round table, so that a common plan can be worked out, aiming at a one-time sending of catalogues and other publications to these Federations, with the cooperation of the postal services.

2 - DEVELOPEMENT OF THEMATIC PHILATELY

A rough estimate indicates that about 25000 philatelists world-wide are members of national thematic associations and national or international thematic groups. In several countries the number of exhibitors is growing, but the average level of the exhibits remains unchanged, with some improvement among the medium quality exhibits. Some themes are enjoying more popularity and new approaches, like "Heimat" (my town/region), have gained interested in some countries.

3- REGULATION & GUIDELINES

A recent survey has pointed out that several countries have already implemented the new regulations in their national languages. There is no evidence that all the Federations have organised seminars for jurors.

The Commission is looking at the 1996 date for reviewing the SREV and the Guidelines, in order to ensure a more appropriate matching between the two documents and to eliminate unnecessary details. The intention is to keep modification as small as possible and to re-edit the Guidelines, which are seen meeting the requirements of advanced collectors. Some rework is needed in order to eliminate some sentences which are no longer needed or which refer to minor details, and to smoothen the too many "must" and "should" that are inconsistent with the nature of such a document.

A dedicated working group has been discussing the characteristics of philatelic studies within a thematic exhibit ; its conclusions will be also summarized in the future formal documents of the Commission. Problems and concerns related to the evaluation of documentary exhibits will be also analyzed, in order to assess the consequences of the marks scheme introduced with the new regulation.

As far as the utilisation of revenue/fiscals stamps is concerned, the Bureau has reaffirmed that the definition of appropriate material as in the GREV makes provision only for those items which have been used postally. Other items, matching only partially the same definition, have to be justified as pertinent by the exhibitor. This subject will be discussed, for further clarification, with the relevant FIP Commission.

4- JURIES

A growing concern has been expressed about the composition of the thematic sections of international Juries. It is recommended to increase the participation of expert jurors and to ensure a minimum of continuity between a Jury and the following one.

Judging cannot be interpreted just as the validation of the formal conformance of an exhibit with the SREV, since it requires the deep understanding of both the development of the theme and the philatelic material supporting it. In this light, the attendance to "verbal" seminars cannot be considered sufficient to increase the skill of the jurors ; therefore education events must be based, as much as possible, on judging sessions run by expert team leaders.

It is also recommended that jurors from countries without an adequate set of qualified thematic exhibitors are invited to serve at bilateral or regional events abroad in order to have additional training on the job with more advanced and challenging exhibits.

The Bureau recommends that the organisers of international exhibitions make available to the jurors the list of the exhibits to be judged, so that each individual juror can address some specific themes or material in order to improve his/her preparation.

5 - EDUCATION OF COLLECTORS AND EXHIBITORS

The Commission shall prepare specific documents and tools for jurors and for entry exhibitors, the latter in form of a simple, educational document enriched with illustrations to be provided or modified at national level. The Commission is also developing material to help collectors to understand better the practical implications of thematic philately, without any dependency from rules and regulation, but in full agreement with the same.

Furthermore articles on different types of philatelic material from several countries will be circulated as input for publication in the national thematic magazines, under the headline of "Project Thema".

6 - THEMATIC GROUPS

The list of thematic groups has been kept up to date and plans have been developed in order to increase the liaison between the Commission, the national associations and the thematic groups, also in consideration of the changing organisation in some countries.

7 - COMMUNICATIONS

On the occasion of the meeting in Bangkok it was issued the first number of TC News, the new bulletin of the Commission, edited in a way that should allow a better communication with the delegates. The second issue has been delayed because of a lack of input from the delegates and will be released before the Congress in Seoul. Plans are for 2 issued every year.

Modern Philately is not introduced in the other countries.

New Types of Exhibitions :

In some countries (England, Germany, Holland, Italy, Sweden, USA) is introduced what we may call "Open Class". The rules vary, but often non-philatelic material is allowed and often the public is the jury.

This calls is not specifically connected to thematics, but many exhibits are related to it. In Germany this "Open Class" even has replaced Modern Philately.

Poland has recently seen some exhibitions in museums : stamps + originals to the stamp illustrations.

New trends :

In Germany is observed a trend towards collecting thematic in preprinted albums (a parallel to the common way to collect traditional).

ABOUT A "SEMANTIC ERROR"

La Philatélie Thématique N° 130 has a very interesting comment from Mr. Jacques Riboulet, under the title of "Réflexions sur les règlements de la FIP" (Reflections on the FIP regulations). His point is the following : many misunderstandings are caused by a semantic error in the GREV and the SREV, since they deal with "appropriate material" and not with "philatelic material". The latter definition would have been better understood by philatelists.

Actually the definition proposed by Mr. Riboulet was used in the first drafts of the GREV. Then it was changed in order to avoid other misunderstandings.

A time-based misunderstanding, since "philatelic" in strict sense could have been related to the period starting with the first adhesive stamps, hence excluding the "pre-philatelic" material.

A language based misunderstanding, since "philatelic" material in some languages is that produced for philatelists, within the rules of the postal services (e.g. favour cancelled and not travelled covers.)

Since I consider the clear understanding of the concept of appropriate material as the most important philatelic requirement for building up a successful collection, I bring this comment to the attention of the delegates by asking them a precise question :

HOW CAN WE IMPROVE THE GREV-SREV-GUIDELINES IN ORDER TO MAKE THE CONCEPT OF APPROPRIATE MATERIAL BETTER UNDERSTOOD ?

Meeting of the Bureau Seoul, 23 th August 1994

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Overcrowding

Q : Rameshwardas Binani, delegate of India, asks if there is a criterion for defining overcrowding, i.e. percentage of space left blank on a page.

A : There is no rule, since there is no direct way of measuring the level of overcrowding, which also varies from page to page according to the size of the selected items. What it is judged is the overall balance on the pages, based on the visual assessment that the understanding of the development is not impacted by an excess of material.

Windowing of covers and postal stationery

Q : Anrdt Kermes, Germany, who took care of translating the report of the Jury of Genova'92 for the exhibitors, discussed this document with several other experts of his country. Prof. Dan Angelescu, delegate of Rumania, sent proposals for a change of the Guidelines. They raised the problem of windowing larger items. I summarise their points :

1 . Windowing of postal stationery and in particular of illustrated postal cards, of which only the parts relevant to the development could be shown (Kermes).

2 . Windowing of large documents, of any type (also valuable, ancient documents) whose postal element is on a small area, of which only this essential part could be shown through a window (Angelescu).

A : Delegates are asked to evaluate this subject. This matter is currently a matter of investigation in the programm of work of the Commission and comments are very important.

By the way, Mr Binani is suggesting that overlapping of postal stationery is better than windowing it, since more part of them will be visible in all its philatelic and thematic merits (including quality).

STAMP BOOKLETS

by Gunnar Dahlvig

According to the regulations, stamp booklets are one type of philatelic material to be used in thematic collections. Stamp booklets are today issued by most countries and the relevant thematic information can be found in different places of the booklets. It may be :

- 1 - on all sides of the cover
- 2 - on interleavings inside the booklet
- 3 - on se-tenant panes
- 4 - on the margins (tabs) of the stamp bloc in the booklet.

Wherever the information is found, the common rule is that the stamps must remain in the booklet. You may never use an empty booklet cover or a sole interleaving. The se-tenant panes can be shown without the booklet, but only in combination with the se-tenant stamp(s). It is also implicit that all information must be authorised by Postal Authority.

Originally stamp booklets were issued as handy packages of stamps for the public, more convenient than sheets or parts of sheets. This is still their purpose even if one may suspect that some modern booklets are issued particularly for collectors.

I don't know when and where the first booklet appeared, but in 1904 we find them in England and Sweden and in 1906 in France and Denmark.

Booklets from the first years are of little interest to the thematic collectors. There may be a posthorn on the cover, but normally only the text "Stamps", "Post Office" or the like. As early as in 1909 the English Post Office sold advertising space on the inside of the covers and on interleavings, shortly after followed by Belgium. In the twenties other countries, i.a. France and Sweden followed suit.

1 - THE COVER

As mentioned, we can find private advertisements on the cover relatively early, see illustrations : on the inside (England), on the backside (Denmark) and on all sides, even the front (France).

If the picture or text has a connection to a theme these ads can be used in a corresponding collection.

In the thirties and forties it became common, i.a. in Sweden, that the cover front had a text and an illustration connected with the theme of the stamps in the booklet, see illustration. Today this model is very common all over the world.

Warning : some modern booklets are privately made, i.a. those holding the sports stamps of Western Germany. Only those issued by the Post may be used in an exhibit. Check with the stamp catalogues.

2 - INTERLEAVINGS

The early booklets were always held together by staples, a method still in use in some countries. Today the stamp sheets are normally glued to the covers, but over the years, booklets have also been sewn together.

In the stapled and sewn booklets we can find advertising on interleavings. Such ads are most common in English (from 1909) and Danish (from 1927) booklets, but they can also be found in booklets from other countries, i.a. some English colonies. Sometimes the number of pages with ads is even larger than the number of pages with stamps. These ads are of course a goldmine for the thematic collector. Unfortunately they are not yet catalogued, with one exception. The Danish Thematic Association has recently made a catalogue of Danish booklets, picturing all ads. It may be ordered from : Skilling, Nyvej 17, DK-4050 Skibby. The price is 95 DKK + postage.

3 - SE-TENANT PANES

Se-tenant panes with advertisements have been common in many countries, but mostly they appear in ordinary stamp-sheets. Again England and Denmark are different in having issued this kind of advertisements only in booklets. England started in 1924 and Denmark three years later. In Denmark you can even find ads on se-tenant panes and on interleavings in one and the same booklet.

4 - MARGINS

Text and illustrations on the margins of stamp-sheets, so-called tabs, are also common worldwide. During the period 1922-1937 French booklets had a margin around the stamps and these margins were used for advertisements. Such margins are to be treated just like all other "tabs", that is to say, they must be shown attached to their stamps.

5 - PRESTIGE BOOKLETS

In 1969 England introduced what is called Prestige Booklets, which have got followers in several other countries. A Prestige Booklet consists of some blocs (of four or more stamps) and several pages telling the history behind the stamps. The illustration shows a bloc -also carrying historical information- from such a booklet from Jersey.

Presentation

As has been mentioned, the stamps must remain in the booklet if you intend to use the information on the cover or on the interleavings. It is an advantage if you can verify this, i.a. by showing the stamps (or part of them) and the thematic part simultaneously, see the Swedish booklet shown. In the case of stapled booklets it is possible to open the staple and show one of the stamps sheets entirely or partly, see the Danish booklet, illustration n°8, but with sewn booklets this possibility is closed.

However, the latter are often quite thick, so normally the juror, at any rate, can decide whether the stamps are still there. The opening of stapled booklets (often called an "exploded booklet") is not recommended by traditionalists.

To show the interleavings is always possible, even if it may cause some problems when the booklet is thick and sewn. Stapled booklets can always be opened as was mentioned above, see the Danish booklet again.

If there is useful information in several places of a booklet, impossible to be shown simultaneously (i.a. on all sides of the cover), using photocopies of the hidden parts is permitted, see illustration.

The stamp sheet is folded, see Presentation.
